Hidden Valley Condominiums are located in Inyo National Forest, 7,500 feet above sea level; a world away from the pollution and congestion of the typical workday environment of the modern urban and suburban West.

Each unit affords a corner view of gentle green slopes just outside your window with the tall swaying pines of Mammoth Lakes filling the background.

Only a half block to catch the shuttle bus to the main ski lift. Three-quarters of a mile from the new lodge at lifts seven and eight. Whiskey Creek Restaurant—renown as one of Mammoth's finest—is a mere half block away.

Plan A
Offers a studio downstairs, or a studio loft upstairs—which will accommodate 4 people.

Plan B
Offers a one bedroom downstairs or bedroom and loft to sleep 10 people upstairs.

Designed for your year 'round enjoyment, Hidden Valley Condominiums feature traditional low-maintenance "mountain cabin" exteriors of redwood siding and shingles integrated with the up-to-date styling of tall windows and straight-line design. The natural building materials blend in easily with the surrounding trees.

Hidden Valley Condominiums are built in groups of four to give your home-away-from-home the best possible view of the forest from your picture window. Each unit features a balcony off the living room, for added enjoyment.

Adding to the homey, mountain atmosphere is the fireplace — the central attraction after an exhilarating day of skiing. Fireplace and hearth are faced with quarry tile, a natural complement to the spacious, open-beam ceilings. Light-weight concrete has been placed between the floors for additional insulation and sound proofing.

Your kitchen will feature a brand-name range and plenty of wood cabinets. You'll walk on resilient vinyl flooring there, and quality carpet throughout the rest.

There are large storage areas for your skis, sleds, fishing poles and hiking gear, too.
